WORKING ENVIRONMENT IN SENEGAL

“Senegal is a country of tradition, culture, and color and all of these are woven into the handcrafts that emerge from rural villages and urban workshops. The colorful baskets developed with natural fiber and an array of colorful plastic threads either bought new from a local factory or recycled from old and new prayer mats, stand out immediately as unique to Senegal. All of the women are beautifully dressed from a head-wrap to their shoes, no matter what the occasion, going off to a high-powered job, selling tomatoes on the side of the road or hanging out at the house. It is this visual image that is so present that leads one’s attention to the beautiful woven fabric used to make clothes, fashion accessories, decorative accessories and upholstery. In addition to the hand-woven cloth, there is batik and embroidery, both of which show potential yet at a different scale than the hand-woven cloth. Delving deeper into the market one finds a wide variety of recycled products of various qualities and potential that also demands one’s attention. Leather is also widely present in the market, from handbags and wallets to shoes, in addition to wood; however, Senegal does not have a strong tradition of wood-carving and the majority of the products come from throughout West Africa or are traditional objects being sold as artifacts. Metal is also found being used by a variety of professions, from mechanics to artisans. A few producer groups were seen making chairs, tables, beds and sofas, and an added twist was Ghanaians using metal frames to make garden furniture and swings, weaving with plastic threads bought in the local market. From the extreme of metal, soap is being made and sold locally, promoting the cure of various skin ailments. And Senegal wouldn’t be Senegal if one didn’t mention jewelry being made primarily in silver but also gold; and the tapestries of Thiès.” - Lorraine Johnson /Aid to Artisans Fall 2007

KEY CONSIDERATIONS FOR EXPORTING

- General pricing is high due to the cost of living and cost of raw materials
- Generally communication is good through cell phones and land-lines
- Packing and shipping services are available but are at the high end of costing
- Dakar is Port of Exit with worldwide shipping service agencies available

SENEGAL BACKGROUND

Independent from France in 1960 Senegal was ruled by the Socialist Party for forty Years until current President Abdoulaye Wade was elected in 2000. A southern separatist group has clashed sporadically with government forces since 1982, but Senegal remains one of the most stable democracies in Africa. Senegal has a long history of participation in international peacekeeping missions.

Senegal is the westernmost country in Africa, and the capital Dakar is home to 2.6 million people. Senegal’s dry season lasts from September to May with temperatures averaging in the 80’s on the coast. The rainy season lasts from June to August with average temperatures in the 70s. The currency in Senegal is the Franc (XOF) which is fixed to the Euro. XOF 110.0 = € 0.15.

GA COVA - They are a GIE comprised of two groups one of batik dyers and a second of cut and sew finishers. The batik producer are very talented and could provide some great “one of a kind” pieces however no one in the groups has the ability to communicate in French. Based on the limitations of their language skills, export would be difficult unless the potential exporter is personally interested in working hands-on with the group. INTERFACE TRADING - After a short spell with Nestlé Senegal, Mr. Moctar Fall was the marketing manager for seven years of the African Network for Integrated Development (RADI), a Pan-African development NGO, where alongside his marketing functions was responsible for following multilateral trade negotiations (GATT/WTO; UNCTAD, regional agreements).

In 1994 Mr. Fall set up his first agricultural research and services firm which became in 2000 the leading distributor of agricultural inputs (seeds, phytosanitary products, fertilizers) in Senegal. Other projects followed in the area of the production of vegetables and fruit for the local market and for export to European markets: France, Belgium, the Netherlands, and also in the processing of fruit and vegetables. In the area of fair trade, Mr. Fall supports represents of farmers and artisan craftsmen (drums, toys) in the production and exporting to Europe, U.S., and Australia.

Mr. Fall is a founding member of the national section of Transparency International in Senegal. He is also a member of the Board of Directors of the International Fair Trade Association (IFAT) on which he represents the African region.

L’Artisanerie - Retail shop in Dakar with a good range of artisan craft available in the region. A good store to visit for a first time visitor for a general overview of quality and pricing. Several artisans listed in the main directory are shown in this shop. Presentation is typical of a general open market approach.

Le Canacla - Press release “Hand-washing a new water-saving technology introduced in Rwanda” Ministry of Health of Rwanda, is promoting the Canacla, a new individual and public hand-washing technology. It comprises of a small pot that is fitted with a water flushing mechanism similar to that used in indoor toilets. The user lifts a self-closing lever with their wrists, thus eliminating contamination that can occur when using taps and also saving water. For a single hand wash using an ordinary tap, a person can easily use 2 liters of water, compared to 0.03 liters when using the Canacla.

The Canacla was invented by Vanhercke, son of Dr Ben Vanhercke, a Belgian doctor in Dakar, Senegal, where it was first used. Current work for high volume production is being developed in Dakar. Sourd Art International - Sourd Art International is a highly motivated and talented group of hearing impaired potters. They currently sell to the French Army, the Sports Club, American Tennis Club, and the French Women's club. Exceptionally well organized workshop and production area, they do not have an on-site kiln, they could be a linked with La Canacla for additional kiln time. Highly recommended for export development but will need commitment from any potential importer for kiln development.

ABOUT AID TO ARTISANS

“We create opportunities for artisans around the world to build profitable, sustainable businesses inspired by handmade traditions by offering, through partnerships, access to new markets, business training and design innovation.”

Aid to Artisans (ATA), an international nonprofit organization, is a recognized leader of economic development for the craft industry. By linking artisans to new markets and buyers to culturally meaningful and innovative products, ATA provides needed economic opportunities to artisans while preserving the beauty of global handmade crafts.

WHAT WE DO

In its over thirty years Aid to Artisans (ATA) has changed the lives of thousands of artisans through its “Market Link” program of product design, production assistance and business skills training. In developing countries, handcrafts continue to provide an important source of income, especially in rural areas and especially for women.

Through ATA and its Trade Network, artisan groups around the world have become self-sustaining. Because ATA's goal is to link the artisans to markets, we provide assistance in all stages of that process, including product development and design, business development, market entry, and working with clients.

USAID Program for Economic Growth – USAID EG builds on USAID/Senegal’s successful work on competitiveness enhancement and the Government of Senegal’s accelerated growth strategy. The program has three components:

- Business Development Services that focus on supporting growth of high potential sub sectors to increase investment, trade and competitiveness.
- Public Private Partnerships that attract private investment for efficient delivery of public goods and services.
- Policy Reforms for improved business environment.

The BDS component invests in some of Senegal’s high potential sub sectors which offer products that are in high demand in the local and international markets. These include artisanal textiles, mangos, cashews, bissap, dairy products, fonio, banana, organic and fair-trade cotton and sesame. The component focuses on competitiveness by using a value chain approach, combined with market-based strategies to deliver business tools and techniques. The goal under this component is to promote value addition locally at every possible juncture along the value chain from seed to supermarket. Furthermore, this component works to facilitate Senegalese exporters to benefit from the US Africa Growth and Opportunity Act (AGOA).

PROGRAM BACKGROUND

Aid to Artisans (ATA) is collaborating with UNIDO's projects in Senegal that focus on SME development and in assisting artisans in accessing markets more effectively. ATA's activities contribute to UNIDO's efforts to link small business development approach with market access initiatives for selected artisan enterprises, drawing on ATA's 30-years of experience in producer development, enterprise-level capacity-building, and facilitating appropriate market linkages. UNIDO's Private Sector Development activities in Senegal commenced in 2002 and led to the implementation of a variety of projects in network development for SME assistance that focuses on developing joint business ventures. UNIDO also commissioned the “Gateway” study to assess the viability of various artisan producer groups in Senegal and their possible links to export market opportunities.

As part of ATA's sub-contract with the International Resources Group (IRG), in conjunction with the USAID Economic Growth (EG) project that builds on USAID/Senegal's work on competitiveness enhancement, technical assistance is provided in the area of Business Development Services for printed and dyed hand-woven cloth and handcrafts. ATA and USAID EG are also implementing a pilot project using village level technology for hand spun organic cotton developed for high end export markets.
